Suds in the ocean Too much of a good thing

Since spring of 2008, storm water coming into Friday Harbor at Spring Street outfall has been toxic (detergents) at one level or another. The Spring Street Aquarium has been the "Canary in the Mine." Efforts at clean-up by the town of Friday Harbor have greatly improved the situation, but there are still problems.

We have started a project to measure detergents throughout the county. We have also tried to identify sources of polluting detergents so that concerned public can help.
